DONALD MacMILLAN WILL AP-PEAR IN ARLINGTON UNDER
THE AUSPICES OF ARLING-TON TEACHERS' CLUB

The Arlington Teachers' Club has been fortunate in procuring for Arlington, Captain Donald MacMillan who will give his lecture illustrated by stereopticon and moving pictures.
Captain MacMillan has been lecturing in New England for the last eight weeks, and is to start soon on a southern and western trip.

He has planned to return from the west in April, and the Arlington Teachers' Club has been able to procure him for Friday, April 6th.

It is the plan of the club to hold an afternoon lecture for the children and an evening lecture for ticket holders. Tickets may be procured from any of the Arlington teachers on or after Friday, March 23rd.

BOY SCOUTS TO CELEBRATE

With the two-fold purpose of showing the Arlington public just what Boy Scouting means and of celebrating the 13th birthday of the organization of the Boy Scouts of America, Arlington Boy Scouts will on Thursday evening, February 8th, entertain their friends in Robbins Memorial Town Hall.

To this entertainment the public is cordially invited. The Scouts say they are out to fill the hall. They know that they have a most interesting program arranged and they are putting into its preparation all the youthful spirit and optimism they possess.

Don't disappoint them by staying away. Come early and get the seat you most like in the hall. Come and listen to the Boy Scout orchestra, which is some orchestra in spite of the fact that it is not so very old. Come and hear the boys repeat the Scout Oath and the Scout Law at 8.15 sharp, simultaneously with every other Boy Scout in America.
You cannot fail to be interested in the explanation in detail by various troops of the Scout Law; in the demonstration of "Why I Am a Scout," by Troop 2 and in the Scout songs sung by Troop 3. Then you'll get an idea of what goes on in each troop meeting, for Troop 8 will put on a regular meeting, followed by Troop 6 with a demonstration of "A Hike and a Day in Camp."

All this is but a part of the program. Every minute of the evening will be equally interesting; so remember the date, February 8th, the place, Robbins Memorial Town Hall, the time, 7.45 p. m., and the entertainers, Arlington Boy Scouts.

STUDY CLUB'S POLISH PROGRAM GIVES A RARE TREAT TO MEMBERS

The meeting of the Arlington Heights Study Club, on Tuesday, was one of great interest and beauty, devoted to the art and music of Zech-oslovakia, and Poland.

Mrs. Frank W. Garrett, whose interest in art is so keen, read a delightful paper on the folk art and handicrafts of these people, whose history, while so steeped in oppression and suffering contains so much of the beauty of life as expressed through their art and music. Mrs.
Garrett exhibited a wonderful collection of prints, and reproductions of the wood carving, sculpture, painting, architecture, embroideries, as shown in costumes and head dresses of the people, which she obtained from the Zechoslovak Legation, at Washington. This collection is the only one of its kind in this country and was enjoyed and appreciated by the members and their guests.

Mrs. C. Frederic Evans told of the folk songs, in a most charming and delightful way, beginning with the origin of the folk song, tracing it down through the centuries as taught from mother to child, expressive of the soul of the people.
She played many of the folk songs,
merry songs, sad songs, all inexpresssively tender and beautiful. Helen Stinson very sweetly sang "A Little Snail," a Polish song, and "Bagpipes sounded in the Village," a Zech folk song. Mrs. H. H. Stinson sang "Songs my Mother taught me," by Dvorak. It was a meeting long to be remembered. Mrs. E.
L. Shinn was the hostess.

M. S. A. BOWLING TEAM WINS THIRD IN NEWTON BOWLING LEAGUE CONTEST

The first half of the Newton Bowling League closed with the matches last week, and once more the Middsex Sportsman's Association team is the champion of the league. This tournament has been in what is termed the big pins and for three years now the M. S. A. has won this honor. Previous to this it was a settled matter that the Commercial Club of Brookline, should be the winner and for years they took all the prizes in the big pin league. Commercial is now a runner-up in second place.

The M. S. A. team is one with a reputation and is made up of such men as Ambrose, Usher, Crockett, Ashworth and Chase, and all, with exception of the last named, have bowled together for years and brought fame and prizes to the old Arlington Boat Club, in years gone
by. Brooks and Bixby have substituted on the team, several times and made good every time.

In the final standing of the league Ambrose stands at the head of individual averages with a mark slightly over 191. The other four regulars are well up in the list, each having an average of a little better than 180. Ambrose is the anchor man of the team and the inspiration of the same. "Dick" as he is known made a great record during this season, rolling a total of 722 for three strings, which was 12 pins better than the previous league record,
which stood for two years.

Team work has been the secret of the M. S. A. success and for this they have become noted. The final standing the league shows M. S. A.
with 35 games won and but seven lost and with a team average of 924 and a fraction.

MEMBERS ARLINGTON LODGE OF ELKS INITIATED BY WIN- THROP LODGE

Wednesday evening, the Arlington Elks had as their guests the Winthrop Lodge of Elks, who came in a body to initiate a large class of candidates. The affair was made doubly interesting because of the presence of the exalted ruler of Winthrop Lodge, Angus MacDonald,
of 40 Pleasant street, Arlington.

Members of sister lodges from this section were present, also New York and Connecticut. During the business session over which E. R. Dr.
William E. Denvir, presided, there were many matters of interest. The committee in charge of the anniversary party which comes February 8,
and will be held in Menotomy Hall (Old Town Hall), reported.

Honorary guests of the evening were John P. Brennan, P. E. R. of Cambridge Lodge and president of the Mass. Elks' Association; Col. G.
A. Wiczorek, commander of Fort
Banks, and member of New London Lodge; P. E. R. Edmund D. Fitzpatrick, and P. E. R. William E. Curran of Winthrop Lodge; Dr. P. J.
Cronin and Edward F. Sullivan of Boston Lodge.

Accompanying E. R. MacDonald as his suite were Frederick H. Clark, E.
L. K., Walter J. Marsh, E. L. K.,
John V. O'Donnell, E. L. K., Henry
W. Wilson, secretary, Herbert F.
Rinehart, treasurer, Albert R. Crossman, tiler, George W. Verde, chaplain, Daniel J. Honan, I. G., John J.
Harron, William J. Cawthorne and

Harry A. Torrey, William H. Walsh,
B. J. Stiles, Edward A. Spence, A. C.
Mortimer, and P. E. Steward, assistant esquires, and Fred Strahan, organist. The manner in which the degree work was discharged drew much praise from those who witnessed it.

Following the initiatory work,
speeches were made by John E.
Brennan, William Curran, Edward Callahan and Mr. MacDonald. A supper was served by the Hardy Catering Company. During this social session, many of the members contributed songs and an orchestra, made up of young ladies formerly of the Quartermaster's Corps during the war, furnished the music.

MRS. ANN J. A. LEARNED PASS- ES AWAY IN HER NINETY- THIRD YEAR

Mrs. Ann Jane (Mason) Learned, one of the oldest women in Arlington, passed away, Monday afternoon, January 22nd, in her ninety-third year, at the home of her son, George H. Averill, a member of Post 36, G.
A. R., of Arlington, who resides at 41 Wollaston avenue, Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Learned had been in her usual good health up to a few days before her death, when she complained of feeling tired and at the last, simply fell asleep, having been up in a chair only an hour before she passed away. She was born in Gloucester, August 31, 1830. When she was young, she sang in the choir of Dr. Neal's Church, on Hanover street, Boston, and for a great many years was a member of the Dudley Street Baptist Church of Roxbury. Since coming to Arlington Heights, thirty-five years ago, Mrs. Learned became a member of the Park Avenue Congregational Church, where members of her family have been prominently identified for many years. When Mrs. Learned was seventy years of age, she with her son, Mr. George Averill and younger daughter, Miss Josephine Learned, also two of her grandchildren, made up a quartet, that sang in an entertainment at Park Avenue Church. She was a life member of the Boston Baptist Bethel, being on the board of directors for a number of years. She was also a member of the Baptist Missionary Society and of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

When Mrs. Learned celebrated her ninety-second birthday, last August, five generations were represented.
She was twice married. Her late husband was Garfield Learned, who passed away forty years ago. He was a printer, having been employed in the Boston Herald and Post offices, as copy holder for many years.
Besides Mr. George Averill with whom Mrs. Learned has resided for the past eleven months, the deceased is survived by two other sons, Archie Averill of Dorchester, and Samuel Garfield Learned of Arlington
Heights, and two daughters, Mrs.
Mary Jane (Learned) Goodwin, of Huntington, Mass., and Miss Josephine Learned. There are also twenty-four grandchildren, thirteen great grandchildren and one great great-grandchild.

The funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon, From Park Avenue Congregational Church. The service was in charge of Rev. John G. Taylor, pastor emeritus of the Park Avenue Church, and long time friend of Mrs. Learned, assisted by Rev. Harold Stratton, minister of the church. Musical numbers were sung by Mrs. Herbert H. Reed. The interment was in Cedar Grove Cemetery.

A. H. S. HOCKEY TEAM WINS FROM MALDEN, THREE TO NOTHING

The High school ice hockey team showed real speed in their game,
Tuesday afternoon, on Spy Pond,
against the Malden High school team.
It was the only home game that Arlington has had a chance to play.
Their team work was such that the Malden boys were kept on the defensive all the time. Captain Ed Hammond of the Arlington team was the happiest one of the party when the game was over, for he had so little to do he could scarcely keep himself warm, for the day was a bitter cold one, which kept many from attending the game.

Arlington won out by a score of three to nothing, getting in their real big work at the outset of the game, attacking hard and furious and driving two tallies through the Malden goal posts. Donnelly, right wing for the Arlington team scored the first goal after some brilliant team work on the part of his team mates. Nazro, playing at left wing, made the next tally, after his perfect shot for the tally.

Malden then settled down and played a defensive game from then on, protecting their own goal the greater part of the time. The next tally came in the second period when Crosby brought the puck down the ice and wiggled through the line and made a perfect shot for the third tally. This was the last tally of the game, although many more shots were made. Captain Donahue and Barrabee of the Malden team did good work in stopping the bombardment at their goal net and staved off many drives that looked like sure tallies.

The Arlington boys are greatly handicapped by not having any rink in which to work. Playing on the open ice and in a rink are entirely different, for it calls for two different styles of playing. The open ice play is the least desirable according to experts of the sport. The score of the game is as follows:—

ARLINGTON H. S.	MALDEN H. S.
Donnelly rw	Henry
Crosby c	Daley
Nazro lw	Donahue
Danton rd	Endler
Scanlan ld	Barrabee
Hammond g	Donahue
Score, Arlington H. S. 3. Goals, made by Donnelly, Nazro, Crosby. Referee, Lynch.
Goal umpires, Curtin, Leary, Timers, Hookey, McLean. Time, three 12m periods.

engineer and highly esteemed citizen of Arlington, passed away early this (Friday) morning.

Church.

"FRIENDS OF THE DRAMA" MEETING

Members of the Arlington Woman's Club who have formed a drama club, to be known as "Friends of the Drama," met Thursday afternoon in the Hearing Room of Robbins Memorial Town Hall.

Already a large number have expressed themselves as interested in the work that will be taken up by this group of women and have joined the club. Mrs. Cyrus E. Dallin, chairman of the dramatic committee of the Woman's Club, was chairman of the afternoon, presiding over the business that occupied the first part of the afternoon. Permanent officers will be chosen later.

A pantomime was presented under the direction of Mrs. Gracia Moody, entitled "A scene in a Railroad Station." It was interestingly presented by Miss Edith Winn, Miss Ellen Percy, Miss Abbie Hesselstine, Miss
Marguerite Shedd, Mrs. Stella M.
Cushing and Susan Powell.

Then came a "Drama Burlesque" on the Friends of the Drama, that was costumed and given in a most clever manner. Each lady appearing, wrote her part and the little song introduced was written by Mrs.
Verne Q. Powell. Those taking part were Dr. Barbara Ring, impersonating Drama; Mrs. Powell as the Playwright; Mrs. H. H. Stinson, the Musician; Mrs. George Clark, Comedy, and Mrs. Walter Vaughn, Tragedy.

ARLINGTON LOCALS

—Mrs. Rebecca Hicks of Pond Terrace, is recovering from a severe case of bronchitis. This affection has been prevalent about the town.

—Next Thursday evening, at the club house of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association, there will be a bridge and whist party with prizes in both games.

—The police are looking after un-muzzled dogs and have rounded up one thus far. The animal was promptly killed. All others found unmuzzled or unrestrained will meet a similar fate.

—At the First Parish (Unitarian)
Church, on Sunday morning, Dr.
Gill will speak upon "Plato, the Prince of Idealists," this being the third sermon in the series on "Creative Leaders in the Spiritual Life."
Service at eleven. All are invited.

—At the last meeting of the Community Club of Arlington, held in G. A. R. Hall, the following officers were elected to serve the club for the coming year:—President, Cecil B.

Crowley; Vice-President, William
Goodman; Treasurer, Herbert Gill-
man, Jr.; Secretary, Stuart N. Hotaling.

—The Rev. and Mrs. Ralph H.
Rowse of Hartford, Conn., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Jean Priscilla.

—Arlington Lodge of Elks will pay a fraternal visit to Winthrop
Lodge on next Sunday afternoon.
The local lodge will be represented by a large delegation and Winthrop Lodge has planned a big program for the occasion.

—Extensive plans are being made for the annual reunion of the members of St. Agnes' Church parish, in Robbins Memorial Town Hall, on Monday evening, February 12th.
The committees have been appointed and everything is going forward to make this the most enjoyable event.

—The George W. Blanchard Lumber Company, has added two new large auto trucks to its equipment, doing away with the old outfit and so bringing the local branch right up to date. Manager Cole is a hustler and has a keen eye to the best interests of the company.

—The rain of last Saturday night and Sunday morning, also in the late afternoon and evening of Sunday, cleared our streets of a great quantity of snow. Walking was a bit uncomfortable and somewhat hazardous in places, but pedestrians were comforted no doubt, with the thought that the snow was going rather than coming.

—Friday evening, January 19th,
the Arlington Assembly Club, held its semi-monthly meeting, which was open also to friends and husbands of the members. The Harmony Boys of Cambridge, entertained with comic songs and make-up, recitations and instrumental music; after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. F. F. Baker, chairman of the entertainment committee.

—For many years the Arlington Heights Tennis Club has conducted the most popular dances given in Arlington, and they are fast becoming an institution. The falling off in attendance, last year, however,
seemed to demand a change of policy. This was attempted at its last party, but the departure did not prove successful, however, to a majority of regular patrons of the dance. With this in mind, it is the intention of the committee to adhere to the conservative policy of the old dance committee.

—Longfellow Chapter, No. 117, O.
E. S., met Tuesday evening, Jan. 23, in Odd Fellows' Hall. It proved an interesting meeting as it was the first since the installation of the new officers for the year and during the social hour they had an opportunity of meeting members of the lodge in a friendly manner. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Benner, chairman, assisted by Mesdames Maude
Lawrence, Edna Doving, Florence
Wickwire, Emma Cartmel, Minnie
Hathaway, Evelyn Giffin, Florence
Boyd and Ella Weldon. The dance managed by Mrs. Mabel Whitney, comes this Friday evening, in Robbins Memorial Town Hall.

—The Arlington Associates, an organization of well known men of this town, held their annual meeting on Thursday evening, of last week at "Ye Lantern" on the shore of Spy Pond. The business meeting was preceded by a banquet, served by the Hardy Catering Company.
During the business session the following officers were elected:—John A. Bishop, president; James P. Donnelly, vice-president; John J. Lyons, trustee; Daniel F. Ahern, treasurer;
Daniel W. Haley, secretary; Luke
M. Monroe, Dr. William T. McCarthy
and A. Charles LaBrique, auditors.
A substantial dividend was declared, showing good business the past year.

—Parker Webb one of the most prominent members of the Boston
Real Estate Exchange, was elected secretary of the Broker's division at the convention of the National Association of the Real Estate Board held at Jacksonville, Florida, last week. This was no small tribute to Mr. Webb's popularity, when one is reminded that there were five hundred delegates at the convention, representing 127 cities and 37 states, and four provinces of Canada. Mr.
Webb resides at 7 Jason terrace, Arlington. He is a member of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association,
and is well known in Arlington.

—Those that know say this year's Minstrel Show, which is going to be given in the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, February 9th, and 10th, will eclipse by far any of the others.
Harry Orr has been working for a long time on it and has some new and snappy numbers that will make it an assured success. Rehearsals have been in progress for some time and when the curtain goes up for the first performance those who were fortunate to secure tickets, will witness one of the best amusement events that has ever been given in Robbins Memorial Town Hall. Reserved seats and tickets now are on sale at Perham's Drug Store for both nights.

PUPILS OF MARIE J. FRAZER GIVE A FINE EXHIBITION OF DANCING IN TOWN HALL

Robbins Memorial Town Hall was filled with a large and appreciative audience on Friday evening, of last week, chiefly parents and friends of the dancing pupils of Miss Marie Josephine Frazer, who gave an exhibition of their work, thus far this season, under the supervision of their teacher.

The dances were varied and each was costumed with a good deal of taste which added to the pleasure of the recital. The classes are for all ages, but one of the most interesting was the one for the little tots ranging in age from two and one half years to three and one-half and the work of Miss Frazer with these little bits of humanity, demonstrated her ability as a teacher and she is to be congratulated. Miss Lucy Neilan was at the piano. Each number given called forth words of praise and commendation from the audience.

Ethlyn Barber, Margaret Miller, Katherine Kiley, Marie Kennelly, Ruth Spense, Rita Sullivan, Anna Norberg, Olive M. Hensuett, Katherine Kennelly, Eleanor Purcell and Frances Traverse, opened the program, their dance entitled, "Welcome 1923 flowers." A pretty feature number was a golf and tennis dance with Frances Frazer, Helen Kenna, Helen Hendrick, Gertrude Hendrick, Claire O'Connor, Claire Purcell, Alice Leverone and Collins as the golfers; Mary Sullivan, Aurelia Hyman, Marion Alice Shea, Ruth Lowe, Evelyn Gray, Mary Leary, and Alice Duncan, tennis players. Marguerite and Eleanor Eager, appeared in a duet number; Anna Callahan, a polka. Solo numbers were given by Mary Purcell, Elizabeth Emerson, Mildred Gray, Edith Willwerth, Eleanor Sorny, Mary Dacey, Mary Sullivan, Dorothy Campbell, Frances Frazer, Aurelia Hyman, Ruth Spense, Katherine Kennelly, Margaret Miller, Ethlyn Barber, Eleanor Purcell, Anna Norberg, Doris Lee, Katherine Kiley, Lillian Green, Adrienne Kelly, Rita Sullivan, Mary Leary, Alice Duncan, Alice Leverone, Marion Dolan, Evelyn Gray, Frances Frazer, Claire O'Connor, Agatha Collins, Alice Shea, Claire Purcell, Margaret Cassidy, and Helen Kenna.

Another feature number was the class of 1923 girls' dance, by Claire O'Connor, Helen Hendrick, Gertrude Hendrick, Frances Frazer, Aurelia Hyman, Alice Shea, Evelyn Gray, Mary Sullivan, Agatha Collins and Margaret Cassidy. Louise Ledwidge, Margaret Crayton, Marie Fontaine, Eleanor Allen, Margaret Cronin, Eloise Hauser, June Tenny, Genevieve Crayton, Virginia Desmond, Helen Driscoll, Catherine Grace and Carmel Fenia, appeared in a sketch "Watch your step." IMPORTANT LEGISLATIVE BILL DISCUSSED AT WOMAN'S CLUB FORUM

On Sunday afternoon in Robbins Memorial Town Hall, a small audience gathered on the invitation of the Arlington Woman's Club, to hear discussed important bills that are to come before the State Legislature. The meeting was planned by the Legislative Committee of the Woman's Club. Mrs. Charles F. Winner, chairman, and afforded an excellent opportunity for club members and the citizens in general, to become familiar with five bills at least, that are absorbing the interest of legislatures in this state and of the Women's Clubs, through their legislative committees.

Mrs. George B. C. Rugg, president of the Arlington Woman's Club, introduced the chairman of the meeting, who was Mrs. J. W. Atwell of Lynn, Legis active chairman of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Atwell is a bright, energetic club woman, and past president of the North Shore Club of Lynn. She made a most excellent presiding chairman and because of the absence of one of the speakers, Commissioner Sanford Bates, who was expected to be present and speak on "The new State Prison," and the "Wages for Prisoners," two bills that have been introduced by the Department of Correction, later in the afternoon, she explained these bills, giving not a little information that was most enlightening to the majority of those present.

Before introducing the speakers, Mrs. Atwell made a plea for all women to exercise the equal franchise recently given them, and said it was the indifference of the intelligent people that made it possible for objectionable men to get into politics. It is the duty of every woman to educate herself along matters of state and national affairs.

The first speaker introduced was Mrs. True Worthy White, a past president of Arlington Woman's Club, and Women's Aid Association of Symmes Arlington Hospital, now a foremost worker in the State and National Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. White spoke for the bill to make women liable for jury service, which has been introduced by the Massachusetts League of Women Voters. In opening her remarks, Mrs. White said the League of Women Voters was not a women's party. She said there were three responsibilities that must be recognized by the women now that they have been given equal franchise. That was to vote, to take her part in military service for the defense of our country, and in serving as jurors. She mentioned the twenty-two states that have women jurors. That this is the next logical step for women. She felt that more justice would be meted out with a mixed jury than otherwise. Mrs. White also felt that the quality of the jury could be raised by introducing women as jurors and of the force of the question raised as to how a mixed jury could be cared for over night. Mrs. White said that most men do not care to serve on a jury, but it is a duty that comes with the price of citizenship. Most women have as much time to serve as do men.

The next speaker was Mr. James Moyer, director of the Department of Universal Extension, who spoke on the bill introduced by Senator Abbott B. Rice, relating to the issue of educational motion pictures in schools and colleges. The present law requires the use of an expensive booth and an operator, also the use of small and expensive non-inflammable films. The bill wishes to make it possible to use other films which under the careful manipulation of a teacher or a janitor in an inexpensive portable machine, which is all that is necessary for the use in the schools and colleges. Mr. Moyer said that none had appeared to oppose the bill when it was introduced last year, but nevertheless it was not passed by the legislature.

Mrs. Atwell then proceeded to explain briefly the other three bills that will be presented at the mid-winter meeting of the State Federation in Somerville, February 27th. They are as follows:

Two State Bills, House bill 53, which provides for a new State Prison and House bill 54, which allows wages for prisoners, are introduced by the Department of Correction.

A bill to provide for the Proper Examination, Classification and Treatment of convicted prisoners, is introduced by the Massachusetts Civic League.

Senator Lodge has introduced in the Senate a resolution calling for an amendment to the Constitution permitting legislation on the labor of persons under eighteen years and women.

The Executive Board has recommended the principal of a Uniform Marriage and Divorce Law and Education on the bill drawn by Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis.

The Executive Board is opposed to the Federal Amendment proposed by the National Woman's Party to remove existing equalities between men and women.

The new State Prison bill, one in which Gov. Cox is especially interested, provides for the erection of a new State prison on some land situated twenty-five miles from Boston, the buildings to contain all modern appliances. Mrs. Atwell said that the land on which the prison now stands is worth $700,000. There are no facilities for unloading or the storing of coal for congregated feeding which causes a large expense in this feature alone. The sanitary conditions are of the worst sort.

A bill to provide proper examination, classification and treatment of convicted prisoners was briefly spoken of by Mrs. Atwell, also the bill to provide wages for prisoners. The minimum wage should be ten cents a day and the maximum twenty-five cents. When the inmate is released now he is given ten dollars. With this new law they would receive something like $75 dollars which they have earned.

The resolution for Child labor amendment and which Congress has the power to prohibit or regulate was touched upon by the chairman. One million six thousand children under sixteen years of age are at work in the United States. Forty-two thousand, six hundred children, were employed in Massachusetts during 1921. The last bill endorsed by the State Federation of Women's Clubs, presented at this time was that of a uniform marriage and divorce law. The full text of the bill Mrs. Atwell said would be found in the February number of the Pictorial Review.

The Equal rights amendment will be opposed by the State Federation. Mrs. Atwell said that one of the gravest objections to the passage of the amendment is that it will clog the courts for many years and endless confusion will ensue in the enforcement of existing laws, since their constitutionality may be in doubt for years. The State bill was introduced last year by the National Woman's Party which required fifty-seven amendments to the statute laws. The new bill that will be introduced calls for thirty-two.

POP CONCERT AT MIDDLESEX SPORTSMAN'S ASSOCIATION CLUB HOUSE

Every available space in the main hall and sun parlor of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association was taken on Thursday evening, of last week, the occasion being a pop concert, given under the auspices of the social committee, which is made up of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Douglas with Mrs. Carter as chairman. That this was an efficient committee was demonstrated by the excellent entertainment furnished and its successful disposal of tickets.

There were fifty-four tables around which were seated congenial groups, who were given a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment, by a group of talented young women. There were dancing numbers by Ruth Farrar; novelty songs by Tid

Falardean; violin numbers by Olga Cuttaccio; accordion selections by Leonora Ferren; ballad singing by Grace Chadwick, who had an exceptionally fine voice; and Florence Fitzgerald, at the piano.

At the tables were served soft drinks, ice cream and smokes by a group of young women, who were Misses Eudora Rice, Anna Rogers, Inez Zecher, Carolyn Bennett, Miriam Crosby, Helen Hadley, Pauline Crosby, and Eudora Rice. The tables were so arranged that a large hollow square was reserved for dancing, which was participated in by many to the music of Frederick F. Smith's orchestra. The affair was informal, as to dressing.

ARLINGTON MEN'S CLUB

The January meeting of this non-political and non-sectarian social club of Arlington business men, was held in the vestry of the Orthodox Congregational Church, on the evening of Monday, January 22nd. At the meeting, the preceding month, there was a considerable increase in membership, some thirty names being added to the roll as the result of the work of canvassers. A natural consequence was that the meeting on Monday evening, was more largely attended than any previous meeting, except at ladies' night. Five tables were needed to accommodate the company present. Each member wore a tag on which his name was plainly printed, so there was no need of personal introduction. This feature was evidently a factor in obtaining the broad good fellowship that marked the disposing of the supper, served at 6.30.

At the conclusion of the banquet, led by Mr. Carl H. Carroll, with Mr. H. Stanley Marsh, organist of the church, at the piano, the guests present joined in singing a half dozen or more songs found on a printed song sheet. This was preceded by a series of hits at club members, by Mr. C. H. Carroll, rendered to notes of a familiar tune, in the chorus of which the entire company joined. The hits were palpable, and as thoroughly enjoyed by the victims as by any.

There being routine business alone to be disposed of, promptly at eight o'clock, President Dickinson introduced Mr. Robert Burns, head of the Burns Detective Bureau, as the speaker of the evening, who was received with a round of applause.

At the outset the speaker robbed his business of the glamour thrown around it in detective stories, stating it was no sort of mysterious, dark lantern sleuthing, but merely the treating of ascertained facts in a common sense way and arriving at results largely by a process of elimination. As with many other things, accident and the element of luck enters into the solving of intricate problems. The private bureau brings to successful conclusion many more cases than the official "plain clothes man," simply because not one of these men can devote sufficient time to any complicated case before he is called to service elsewhere.

For over an hour Mr. Burns held the closest attention of his audience, (who were often provoked to laughter by incident or manner of telling the story) in giving particulars of how his officers had procured arrests of thieves, in one case of a duet of murderers, defaulters, embezzlers, etc. All were interesting, several were quite dramatic. It is safe to say the club members and guests have not often had a more fully enjoyable evening. There were quite a number of ladies present, they coming, as did several gentlemen, after the banquet had been served.

FEED THE WILD BIRDS

Winthrop Packard, Secretary of the Massachusetts Audubon Society earnestly urges everyone to feed the wild birds. The ice and deep snow cover their accustomed food supply and thousands of feathered friends will starve to death in bitter cold if we do not feed them. Give them scraps from the table, chaff from the haymow, grain and seeds of any kind. Put the food out near the house where you can watch them from a window.

A good way is to set a common packing box on the snow with the opening toward the house. Scatter the grain on the top of the box and put more inside. The birds will find it and the box will keep it from being buried in the next snow. You will find it very pleasant to watch these birds feed and you will be surprised to find how much they need. Once found they will go back and forth to the food all day long.

Our winter birds withstand even the severest cold if well fed. But, when the snow covers the frozen insects, dormant larvae, eggs and seeds of weeds on which they naturally feed, they often starve in great numbers. Feed them then in your yard and near your home, in the fields and woods if you will. Almost anything eatable is useful. Grain and "scratch-feed" scattered on trampled snow or under evergreen trees will keep the quail, pheasants, grouse, and a host of smaller birds well fed. Bread crumbs and chaff from the barn floor are cheap and useful. Hemp and sunflower seed, other bird seed, and especially nutmeats are most attractive to many birds. With bits of broken peanut you may coax chickadees and nuthatches to eat out of your hand. Very many people are successful in this, and suet and spit marrow-bones, refuse meat, all are eagerly eaten.

To feed the birds is a fine philanthropy. In saving them we save ourselves for the birds are of great value in the economy of nature. The Massachusetts Audubon Society, Boston, Mass., will gladly give further information concerning methods and material for this work.

MILK TO BE SERVED TO PUPILS IN THE LOWER GRADES OF ARLINGTON SCHOOLS

On Monday morning, at the recess period, was served milk to pupils in the lower grades of Arlington schools through the cooperation of Arlington School committee and the Board of Health.

This distribution brings great satisfaction to the Arlington Welfare Council, which for the past two years, has been endeavoring to see this service that is being given in many of the schools in the leading cities in and about Boston, instituted in Arlington schools. Dr. Therese Bonney Thomas as chairman of the Health department of the Welfare Council, has been especially interested in seeing this tried in Arlington, and through her efforts, and that of its President, Mrs. Roscoe Perry, and the cooperation of the Civics Committee of the Arlington Woman's Club, Mrs. Nelson B. Crosby, chairman, this work has been put on a financial footing.

The sale of the Red Cross Seals in Arlington at Christmas time was for this purpose, and with this collection and money already on hand, the Welfare Council has a fund amounting to $950. The Arlington Woman's Club has contributed $50, to be expended through the school committee.

On the first morning there were eleven hundred and sixty children who brought their money to pay for the milk, which is delivered in one-half pint jars, for which they pay five cents. There is a straw furnished with each jar. Crackers are to be provided also.

A. H. S. GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM LOST TO WATERTOWN HIGH, IN A SCORE, 35 TO 18

The Girls' basketball team of the High school, played its first game in the interscholastic league series on Thursday afternoon, of last week, losing out to Watertown High by a score of 35 to 18. While the score might indicate a runaway match, the game was a well fought one. The game marked the first for the Arlington girls and it showed lack of experience in shooting the basket, while on the other hand the Watertown girls were very accurate in their shots and all tallied. The game was played in the High school gymnasium. The Arlington girls have a good team and with a little more experience will make a good showing later in the season. The summary of the game is as follows:

WHAT ONE CITY DID TO "FIX" THE SMALL STORES

Kansas City has resorted to boycott to protect its boulevards from the invasion of unsightly business houses. A few hours before a floral parade, one of the features of the city's recent celebration of the thirtieth birthday anniversary of its park and boulevard system, passed along Benton Boulevard, the sign shown at the right above was erected, by order of the park board.

The opposite face of the signboard bore an explanation: "Notice! These Two Little Stores were erected contrary to the wishes of all the residents along this boulevard and contrary to the known policy of Kansas City, as declared in Ordinance No. 42796, constituting this a residential district. By order of the Park Board."

The two stores are in a small, single-story, brick building, erected five months ago by Solomon Laner and Lewis Laner, brothers, who own several groceries over the city. The district is one of fine residences and small apartment buildings. A business center is only a block away and residents felt there was no call for the Laner brothers to spoil the beauty of the boulevard.

Houses in the block stand well back from the street and on a terrace, about five feet high, extending the entire length of the block. The grocers purchased a residence tore away its front porch, excavated the terrace and built their stores on the street level and flush with the sidewalk, making the brick structure a part of the once fashionable residence.

Neighbors knew nothing of the plans until work had begun. They remonstrated in vain, then called on the park board. There was no ordinance to prevent the work. The board filed condemnation proceedings, after property owners in the block had agreed to an assessment to pay the cost of condemning the lot.

Attorneys for the grocers filed an injunction, restraining the park board from proceeding with the condemnation measures. The building was finished. Laner brothers established a grocery in one room. The other was rented to a druggist.

The case still is in the courts. Attorneys for the Laner brothers advised them to tear down the sign, which is on park board property, alongside the stores, but they hesitated to do so, and it still stands. It was viewed, on the day effected, by several thousand persons.

CAPT. "JACK" SANFORD IS AWARDED "PALM ACADEMIC" OF FRANCE

In the Boston Sunday Herald of January 21st, there was a long article illustrated, of the work Captain "Jack" Sanford is doing in rebuilding the war-shattered towns of Hattonchattel and Apremont in France. Captain Sanford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Sanford of 17 Jason terrace, Arlington. He attended the Arlington schools, graduating from the High school and was attending Harvard College, when war with Germany was declared. He was studying architecture. He left Harvard and joined the Harjes-Norton Ambulance corps. When America went into the war this organization was absorbed. Sanford, because of a cracked shoulder, was rejected for combat work, but became a Y. M. C. A. worker, and later went into the Red Cross work, where he was the second youngest captain in the service. The ADVOCATE published several letters written by Captain Sanford to his parents during the war and they were read with interest for he was a popular member of the younger set in the First Parish Unitarian Church, where he often took part in their dramatics.

This decoration of Palm Academic, is the highest French award and is only given to those who are benefiting humanity. Usually the award is only conferred on scientists, so the honor is all the more noteworthy and is a recognition of extraordinary achievements.

The article in the Herald refers to Captain Sanford as having become a "leading architect at the age of only twenty-eight." The article further goes on to say that since the war he has been engaged with Miss Belle Skinner in rebuilding Hattonchattel and Apremont. Miss Skinner is financing the work in the former community herself, while the city of Holyoke, is financing the rebuilding of Apremont, scene of one of the first American engagements in the war.

Through connections formed as the result of his achievements, he is hobnobbing with all the men of importance in France and with many notables from other countries, and he is an idol in the eyes of the people of each village.

A number of months ago workmen excavating under direction of Captain Sanford in the sunken garden of a dwelling he restored for his own use as a habitation dug up an earthen jar, out of which poured gold and silver coins, 411 of them in all.

Sanford, Miss Skinner and the workmen all were astonished to discover that the latest date on any coin was 1517, indicating that the treasure was hidden away some time early in the 16th century. The earliest date on any coin was 987. Of the 411 coins, 5 were gold and the rest silver.

The Arlington man sent two of the coins home to his parents. Eleven other coins were coins that the French government did not have in its collection. The French offered Miss Skinner $5,000 for each of these 11 coins. Miss Skinner refused the money, but presented the coins to the government.

Now Captain Sanford hopes, in his reclamation work, to unearth the treasures of the Bishop of Verdun, buried in the vicinity of Hattonchattel in 1250 and never recovered. Captain Sanford has returned to America several times with the express intention of remaining here, but each time has been induced to return and take up some important work, this last time for the rebuilding of the villages above referred to. The following is clipped from the articles in the Herald:

"Under the leadership of 'Captain Jack' the villagers in both hamlets went to work with a will. Every available villager was put to work on the vast project. Houses were patched up where it was possible to restore them without rebuilding. Quarries, rich in soft limestone, so soft that it can be cut with a buck-saw, were reopened and worked."

"A new school was constructed and a church was raised up from the ground on designs by 'Captain Jack' and under his supervision. A reservoir was built and a pumping station erected. Then the new 'Mairie,' or town hall, was built."

"Hattonchattel is situated on a hill and ever since the town was settled the women were compelled to descend to the bottom of the elevation to wash clothes and get water."

"'Captain Jack' and Miss Skinner did away with this hardship. Sanford designed a lavoir, or building where the townswomen could wash their clothes without going down to the hill, thus abolishing the task of carrying the wet and heavy clothes up the steep hills."

"The old church was in a terribly battered condition as the result of shell fire. It was built in 1510 and dedicated to the venerated first bishop of Verdun. This church is being slowly restored to its old-time condition of beauty."

"Dwelling houses were next put up and the villagers emerged from the cellars in which they had been living for years and took up their new habitations. Homes were built for the villagers who could not afford to pay for them. In the case of villagers who wished homes on a mortgage plan, houses were built and turned over to them on this plan."

"The ancient beauties of architecture, all the old French styles, were followed closely by 'Captain Jack' in the restoration work until now Hattonchattel has somewhat its former appearance. The Arlington architect has been highly praised by French officials and American dignitaries for his excellent work."

"For himself, Miss Skinner turned over to 'Captain Jack' an old house situated at the edge of a 400-foot cliff. He built into it a beautiful, large living room, installed model plumbing and restored the rest of the mansion."

"Then his artist's eye saw the beauties of a sunken garden, and he laid the garden out. It was while excavations were being made for the sunken garden that a workman drove his pick into the jar of ancient coins. The find was made ten feet below the natural surface of the earth."

"CREO-DIPT" STAINED SHINGLES

Quality of shingles. Each shingle is sawed from selected cedar logs—not from forest waste; all parallel widths—no wedge shapes; thoroughly seasoned—not baked to death in dry kilns. Better shingles are not to be found in any market.

Quality of stain. Each shingle is thoroughly stained by a special factory process. Pure pigments are ground twice in pure linseed oil and carried deep in the fibre of the wood with creosote oil. The result is preservation of wood as well as soft-toned colors that do not fade or wash out in streaks.

They cost less than staining on the job.

WHERE ROOSEVELT WOULD STAND TODAY WERE HE LIVING

William Allen White writes that if Col. Roosevelt were alive he would now be identified with the radical groups, and would be fighting the Harding administration. It would be hard to imagine the colonel, even though four years older, "tagging behind Senator Lodge," says Mr. White, forgetting that it was Col. Roosevelt who, in a letter to the Republican National Convention of 1916, suggested Senator Lodge as a presidential candidate suitable to him.

Col. Roosevelt, like Lincoln, is now being quoted to support the theories of the radicals, although, like Lincoln, he was fundamentally a conservative, who was practical enough in politics to compromise at times with public opinion rather than be broken by it. There is no reason for believing that if he were alive, Col. Roosevelt would be going about bearing the label of any "bloc" or playing the demagogue against a national administration as much in line with Col. Roosevelt's views on national and international problems as is the Harding administration.

If Col. Roosevelt were alive he would undoubtedly today be President of the United States and leader of the Republican party and would be receiving the whole-hearted support of Mr. Harding as Senator from Ohio.

One thing we may be sure of about Col. Roosevelt, and this is that he would not approve William Allen White's recent interpretation of the Herrin massacre as a phase of the labor movement rather than as murder. The brilliant but impulsive Kansas editor says that maybe this mob killing was only an assertion of the feeling of the worker that his job belongs to him, even after he has quit it, and some other man, quite as much a human being and with the same right to employment as he, has taken it.

Those who participate in the burning of black men at the stake, sometimes on suspicion, explain the "phenomenon" on the ground that it is in defense of the purity of womanhood, etc. But we have courts for the punishment of what the sovereign people of this republic have defined as crimes. They exist in Mississippi and in Illinois. If the people of this country believed that once a man takes a job it belongs to him whether he works at it or not and that he has a right to kill any one who takes it when he quits it they would have incorporated that view of the matter in the statutes.

Meanwhile, killing people without legal sanction is murder, and no amount of sociological sophistry of the sort that is supposed to make a hit with open or secret believers in mob law can make it otherwise. The Herrin massacre wasn't a phenomenon. It wasn't a "progressive" demonstration; it was plain, brutal and utterly inexcusable bloody anarchy of the kind Col. Roosevelt took peculiar delight in denouncing.

If Col. Roosevelt had declined the presidency, and had remained in the ranks, he would today be squarely behind the Harding administration.

In this time of national and worldwide crisis, he would be a patriot and not a demagogue, a constructive and not a destructive force in politics and public affairs.

He would not be playing to the galleries with apologies for or explanations of the Herrin massacre. He would not be trying to lead his country off on any European wild goose chase. Col. Roosevelt never broadened and thinned out to the point where he was a world patriot rather than American patriot.

He believed in the substance of progress rather than in the mere pargon and stage effects employed by what he called the "lunatic fringe" of every movement labeled "progressive," some such movements being all fringe and froth.

Theodore Roosevelt was a staunch protectionist, a strict nationalist, a friend of legitimate business enterprise, an enemy of state socialism even of the variloid variety, a hater of that class, sectional and occupational prejudice upon which the radical habitually plays. In other words, he was an American and a Republican of the Lincoln-McKinley-Harding school rather than a radical of the Townley-Trotzky breed.

PROHIBITION PROHIBITS

One wonders, as day after day the story of law enforcement as printed in the metropolitan dailies is served up, if many consider that logically there must be two sides to the story—that they are reading about one side only. The impression largely conveyed, by most of what we read about it, is that non-enforcement rules the hour; that in a sense things are "wide open" in the metropolis and elsewhere; that the law under which arrests are made does not express the ideas of the majority; that, in plain English, the prohibitory law is a failure.

That intoxicating liquors are distilled and sold, no one will deny; but the men who produce the stuff and the persons who sell it, are law breakers, who pursue their avocations in the most secret sort of way as do thieves and all other sorts of law breakers. Will our readers, who were four years ago familiar with what might be termed the business centre of Boston and are more or less in touch with it today, in imagination "be our companions in a trip through that section while we enumerate certain changes to be noted. There are no bar rooms in any hotels; street corner after street corner where flourished elegantly appointed drinking places are now used as eating saloons or lunch counters, candy stores or places where merchandise is sold—these not by scores but by hundreds. Surely prohibition has eliminated the open saloon; and we believe facts would warrant the statement that any one of the larger drinking places above alluded to would dispose of more alcoholic beverages in a single day than all the combined bootleggers in Greater Boston could possibly dispose of in that time. To be sure there has been an increase in arrests for drunkenness in some sections; but please remember this bunch shows the whole lot. There are no longer places open, where the victim of alcohol can sleep off the effects of his libations under care of the place where he absorbed his poison, as was the case under license.

Around this group of "respectable" places, and running through all parts of the "slum" section of the metropolis, were drinking places of a lower type, largely the rendezvous of criminals. That these are gone, even the victims who there spent their hard earned wages, are glad. If not they, surely this must be true of the families of which the men are the head.

John Barleycorn held almost undisputed sway through generation after generation because his recruiting station was a legalized affair, flitted with all known devices to attract young men. With these closed, with this sort of temptation removed, we can, with much of serenity, leave his being allured to creating an appetite for alcohol by the bootlegger—he does not deal in beer and wine, the "devil's kindling" wood of the licensed saloon, where as a rule young men of the past took their first steps in a course that ruined their careers.

These are a few of the things it is well to have clearly in mind when people in our hearing talk about infringing on personal liberty and the harmlessness of wine, cider and beer.

NO FOREIGN ALLIANCES

Repeatedly in these columns the opinion has been expressed in one form or another, that America is a more potent force for good to Europe under conditions as they now obtain, than would be the case, were relations more ultimate through the League of Nations or any other form of official connection. That opinion has been based not on news from Europe contained in the daily press, but because economic conditions in Europe are so signally different from those established here by the founders of this republic. Under these and by broadening our similar lines as the country has grown in population and wealth,

America stands today because of the development of those theories, the only nation on earth sound, safe, solid financially.

This nation worked out its own salvation through trials and tribulations; it reached its present condition by recognizing the dignity of labor and labor's right to receive compensation for that labor sufficient to cover cost for family maintenance, and with economy provide for a future. Until other nations have learned the lesson so taught and put the same in practice, this free land will have no common ground on which to meet others, in close connection.

Senator Johnson of California, in a long article in a recent issue of the New York Times, defends the so-called isolation of America along this line of argument, and from it we take the closing paragraphs which we feel sure will interest our readers as follows:

"Europe for its own sake must establish its own modes of European peace. It must develop—even as we developed in 1789—a policy capable of maintaining friendship between jealous separate sovereign States. We made our Constitution not under the tutelage of European policemen but by exertions which, since they were our own, gave us a future stanchly and securely corresponding to our needs. Europe must accomplish a similar achievement in a spirit of similar self-reliance if European civilization is to continue to be European and if it is to be able accordingly to produce in Europe a genuinely sound and healthy European future.

What Europe needs is not rescue but regeneration; and regeneration cannot be imposed by force or bought with money. It must proceed from within. In Europe it must be brought about by European self-examination, European contrition, European amendment. American intervention only delays that process. The isolation of America is not Europe's ruin. It is a necessity to Europe's salvation. I do not feel the need of apologizing to Europe for America's isolation. I think that Europe one day will thank America for it. By refraining from mingling itself in Europe's internal affairs, America will have hastened the re-emergence into this world of a Europe soundly organized within itself and destined accordingly to be Europe and not an annex to America.

I therefore shall support—to the very end—the totally "irreconcilable" policy of refusing all American governmental force and all American governmental money and all American participation in conferences and agreements leading to the use—outright or implicit—of American governmental force or money for Europe. I maintain—and shall maintain—that this policy is both the wise and safe course for America and the shortest route to the great end which every American desires—the restoration, the revival, the renewed grandeur of the culture of the Continent from which we have our being.

The attitude of the "irreconcilable" is dictated, however, primarily by his love of America, his jealousy of the cherished institutions of the Republic and his firm resolve that they shall endure. It is in some circles deemed trite now to refer to Washington—quotations from him excite there a derisive smile, but with a prescience peculiarly his, Washington foresaw and understood that the young nation he nourished could only rise to greatness and reach permanency through a distinctive American character. As one eminent biographer has said, in his whole foreign policy "the American spirit was his pole star." His aim, and that aim until recently, every great American has emulated, was to be American and "make the people and the Government American."

We have seen the struggling little Republic of Washington, because of its American character, grow and grow until it is today the giant among the nations of the earth. We won respect abroad and happiness at home, and we won our success and renown—because we maintained America free from political connections with other countries. Washington's policy and its corollary, the Monroe Doctrine, made the United States neither hermit nor meddling. They insulated us against the intrigues of the political life of the Old World; and thus insulated, thus independent, America's participation in the life of the world can be larger and better because united in its support will be all Americans enjoying in common 'an American Character.'

Plain is our road, and known. If we but keep it, the future of our country is not uncertain. The true "irreconcilable" has dedicated himself to an America "independent of all and under the influence of none;" fulfilling all engagements which duty requires; maintaining a strict neutrality unless obliged by imperious circumstances to depart from it; doing justice to all nations; and from all nations demanding justice; cultivating friendly relations with every nation, and tolerating entangling alliances with none—in short, keeping the Republic free and unfettered, just American."

Last Tuesday, Secretary of State Cook, presented before the Mass. Legislature, his promised proposition to amend the present election law so that registrars of voters in towns could have the twenty days in which to make up voting lists that Boston and all other cities are given. As the law now stands, there are only six working days between the time of closing registration of voters and the date of election. It is now possible to accomplish this task only by working overtime and on Sundays in the printing offices, where the revised lists are made ready for use and next to impossible to avoid some errors of omission or commission where a job is "rushed" in this manner. We hope the measure will have favorable action in season to apply to the near approaching spring election. The enfranchisement of women has increased names on voting lists at least seventy-five per cent.

WOMAN WITH A MESSAGE

Maude Royden, famous English woman preacher who has just recently landed in this country, and at whose opening lectures in New York, thousands were turned away, will make her only public appearance in Boston in Symphony Hall, on the evening of Sunday, February 4th, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., when she will speak on "The World at the Crossroads." Miss Royden, after her Symphony Hall meeting, leaves New England for the middle west, where she is booked to speak every day, sometimes twice a day, until March.

Miss Royden, the only woman preacher in the world, who every Sunday night addresses huge audiences from the great pulpit of the City Temple, London, where she is assistant pastor, is said to be exercising greater influence on the "masses," especially on the young people, by her deep spiritual message, than any woman in England today. For it is the "masses" who come to her, the working people, those who have suffered and for whom life has been difficult. Hundreds weekly find inspiration and courage in the little figure in its plain black silk gown and Quaker-shaped cap, preaching a Christianity of optimism and faith.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS

The promised snow storm of Jan. 24th, was mainly in the shape of rain, which gave us "sloppy" going.

Last Wednesday was the 50th anniversary of founding of the "Harvard Crimson," the newspaper published at Harvard College.

January 24th, the U. S. troops on guard duty in Germany, pulled down the flag and began the return journey to this country.

"Great Britain will pay the debt to the United States." This was published as a news item. Why shouldn't she pay?

Weather conditions so far this winter have caused a shortage in the rubber foot wear business and set mills humming.

The annual "January thaw" came early this week and materially reduced size of piled up mounds of snow, greatly improving travel conditions.

A constitutional amendment to forbid any future issues of tax-exempt securities was passed in the National House of Representatives, on January 23rd.

The verdict "not guilty," rendered by the jury in the Herrin murder trial, was not surprising under conditions obtaining there, but it surely is disturbing.

The investigation of the doings of the Ku Klux Klan in Louisiana, will result in the arrest of many men charged with murder and other crimes.

The famous "nurse bottle" liquor case was concluded in court this week by the payment of $500 fine by the treasurer of the New England Road Builders' Association.

The Siegal building in Boston was sold a few days ago to a syndicate that will make alterations necessary to transferring it into a high class office building.

Coast guards on the Atlantic coast have received orders from Washington, to aid prohibition law enforcement officers in the discharge of their duties.

A Twilight Baseball Association was formed this week in Boston, the membership covering a considerable section of eastern Massachusetts. It will aid in securing passage of a daylight saving bill.

Ex-Mayor Thomas N. Hart of Boston, 94 years old, was the guest of honor at a function in that city, Wednesday evening, coming in spite of the severe storm, and making a speech full of "pep" and sound advice.

It is evident to every thoughtful man that the spirit of lawlessness which finds expression in the violation of the prohibition law is creative of the spirit of lawlessness which found expression in the fearful massacres at Herrin and in the viller and more despicable murders at Mer Rouge.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

Next week the Boston Stock Company will be seen in Carlyle Moore's play of several seasons ago "Stop Thief," which enjoyed great success in New York, on the road and in stock. The original production seen in Boston some time ago had in its cast the late Frank Bacon, Mary Ryan and Richard Bennett. These three roles will fall on the shoulders of Mr. Kent, Miss Bushnell and Mr. Gilbert. The play revolves around two kleptomaniacs, an old man and his son-in-law to be. On the eve of the wedding when the house is full of presents, the temptation is too much for both of them, and a detective is called to keep the presents from disappearing. The detective fails to arrive, but in his stead comes a real crook who is immediately accepted in his place. A maid in the house is an accomplice of the crook and the disappearance of several articles and the arrival of the police complicate matters for all concerned.

The bride will be dressed in blue panne velvet with silver ribbons and clusters of rose buds as embellishments. Her hat will be blue satin with lighter blue feathers and forget-me-nots. She will be attended by Mrs. Guy Edwards of Elmwood street, and Mr. Edwards will be the best man. Mrs. Edwards will wear blue crepe de chine and a gray hat. Mr. and Mrs. Fahney will spend their honeymoon in the Moosehead Lake region, where Mr. Fahney has a camp. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Berkshire. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fahney of 203 Florence avenue. He served two years and four months in the navy, during the late war, and for nine months was on the destroyer, Lansdale. He is engaged in the painting and decorating business in Arlington.

—A chicken dinner at which more than forty guests were served was planned and given by Mrs. T. Frame, at her home, at 99 Claremont avenue. The house was attractively decorated in old rose and yellow, the colors of the Sunshine Club, and the members of the Sunshine Club dressed in white gowns and caps with a band of old rose on the caps, served. Following the supper a musical program was given. Piano selections by Mr. W. Whitman Lockart of Bartlett avenue and Mrs. Wadell of Ariel street, were enjoyed. The Misses Pauline Burke, Estella Wadell, Doris Ritchie and Alice Thorne, gave selections, on mandolins and piano; and Mrs. Samuel LePage, sang in her well known manner. Dr. and Mrs. Samuel LePage were the guests of honor. The proceeds of the supper will go to the Sunshine Club.

A PLEA TO SAFE-GUARD ARLINGTON'S HISTORIC HOUSES

It is difficult for me to understand why it is that Arlington people are so noticeably unmindful of and unconcerned about the town's historic landmarks. This statement is only too true! Within the past few months the town has voted to demolish the Whittemore and Bowman houses on Mass. avenue, near the Soldiers' Monument. A block of brick stores has been built in front of the Abel Locke house on Mass. avenue, at the corner of Forest street. What next?

Why is all this? Can the answer be that these particular houses are not sufficiently historic to warrant their being saved? No, this cannot be so, for they are historic and mighty interestingly so, too.

The first of these houses owned by Amos Whittemore, who invented the machine for making cotton and woolen-cards which gave such a tremendous impetus to cotton and wool-growing, throughout the country. The establishment in 1799 of the Whittemore Brothers' Card Factory, located at the rear of the Robbins house, was the beginning of prosperity to Arlington; in Cutter's History of Arlington: "The town of West Cambridge dates its prosperity from the establishment of this manufacture."

In speaking about the renewal of the patent in Congress, John Randolph, of Roanoke, said in 1809, that he "would renew the patent to all eternity, for it is the only machine which ever had a soul!" This patent Whittemore afterwards sold in 1812, for one hundred and fifty thousand dollars! This house was, furthermore, used from 1818-1840, as a Post Office, while Amos Whittemore was for a time the postmaster. And yet, the town now decides, chooses to tear down the homestead which belonged to so prominent a citizen and whose family, of which Samuel Whittemore was none too obscure a member, has always been so well known in this town.

The Bowman house is the older of these two colonial structures at the square, having been built some time before the Revolution. About the first person in Arlington to be awakened by the British on the morning of April 19, 1775, was Lieutenant Solomon Bowman, who heard the "rattle of the pewter plates on his dresser, jarred by the measured tramp of the soldiers." He went to the door to see what was up. A soldier asked him for a drink of water. Did he get it? Not much! As soon as the troops passed Lieutenant Bowman mustered his company for immediate action. And this house whose owner got the jump and was ready for all eventualities is the house which the town says must go!

Now about the Locke house, built in 1719. It was the forerunner of the other Locke houses nearby, whose owners were also onto their jobs away back in those good old days. Here it was that over a red-hot fire, Mrs. Locke, melted her pewter into bullets, when the British were on their way past, and asking why the house was lighted up, so early in the morning. The bullets were what Mrs. Locke told the British was "yarb tea."

It can't be, can it, that people are only interested in automobiles, moving pictures, bridge parties and what not? All these are fine in their place, but why not a little more concern for a sentiment which is sound and justifiable. (Sentimentality is not a weak thing; sentimentality is! Let the difference in meaning be not confused.)

Of course, Arlington people are not entirely lacking in sentiment, for on every nineteenth of April, a person calling himself "Paul Revere," rides through the town at break-neck speed, thus recalling "that famous day and year." But the thrill thus aroused soon disappears and goes on a vacation until the following spring. In between times Arlington's Revolutionary history is put into the discard and forgotten. A few tourists in the course of the year, stopping off on their way to Lexington and Concord, inquiring for this or that historic spot are reminders to some of the store-keepers and casual passers-by that Arlington really was the scene of splendid thrilling days, once, back in 1775!

What have other towns around Boston been doing in regard to this matter of protection of historic houses? Brookline has kept the Edward Devotion house, as a fit and appropriate place for its Historical Society and, further, built its largest public school about it in quadrangle form as a lesson to younger generations. Besides, the Hammond house has been restored and is again a dwelling. In Dedham, the Fairbanks homestead (1636), the oldest frame house in the United States, has been kept in good repair and used as the gathering place of the Fairbanks' family association meetings. In Cambridge, everybody knows only too well what houses there have been properly taken care of. In Lexington!—Her reputation, and Concord's, too, is splendidly inspiring! In Arlington?—Just what has she done? The Robbins house has been well taken care of to be sure. How stately it is, sequestered behind those grand old elms. But what besides?

On whose shoulders should matters of this nature fall? What organization should have these matters in mind?

Historical societies, we fear, often, while meaning well, do not, or cannot, perhaps, effectively rise to the occasion. Membership is limited; dues are small—usually a dollar or two. Comparatively few young people are members. Ah! right here is the rub. Why? They are of the opinion that historical societies are dull things. This should not be so. Revolutionary days were not dull; why their history! There is no reason at all why membership in a town's historical society should not include a larger number of young people. If clever speakers were engaged, if illustrated views were shown interest would result. If relics and weapons were displayed the young men would be attracted; if domestic utensils of earlier days were exhibited and domestic arts touched upon and illustrated by exhibits of dresses of the corresponding days, the young women would want to come again.

A social gathering more often; a dance once in a while. Not all jazz music would of necessity have to be on the order—the younger folks would be pleased to rest a few dances in order to see the older couples "pull off" a Virginia Reel, a Portland Fancy, or a Schottish! These things enliven interest and they keep it!

Why not break off with the long, dry, subtly written addresses on far-fetched subjects and present history in a living, appealing manner. When this is done historic houses will remain standing as examples of a certain style of architecture gone by and as reminders and mementoes of historic days!

"Save Coal!" is the cry of the hour. Yet the gas industry has been saving coal, the nation's most valuable natural resource, for a hundred years and more. Every pound counts with us, whether in times of stringency or plenty.

Gas is the essence of coal, with none of its discomforts and drawbacks, and with everything taken out at the gas plant but the heat.

From one ton of bituminous coal which goes into the plant there is obtained approximately 10,000 cubic feet of gas, 1,440 pounds of coke, 22 pounds of ammonium sulphate, 2 gallons of crude benzol and 9 gallons of tar.

The gas is used for cooking, heating, lighting and industrial purposes. The ammonium sulphate is a valuable fertilizer and benzol is an excellent motor fuel, a substitute for gasoline. Tar is a waterproofing material used for making roofing and for dressing roads. Nothing is ever deliberately wasted at a gas plant. We are true conservers of fuel.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The official inspection of Troop 4, Scoutmaster Howard Marple, was held in the vestry of the Methodist Church, Monday evening, January 15th. The inspecting officers were Commissioner Frost, Deputy Commissioner Edwards and Executive Bacon. The troop made a fine showing, which brought praise from the inspecting officers. The individual contest was sharp and hard between Patrol Leader Donald Ross and Scout Arnold Goodwin, the latter winning the gold pin.

The last official inspection of the season, took place, Wednesday evening, January 17th, at the Universalist Church, when Troop 8, Scoutmaster Stephen M. Richardson, was put through its paces. Every member of the troop was present, with equipment, which greatly pleased the inspecting officers. Commissioner Frost, Deputy Commissioner Jones and Executive Bacon. The troop made a splendid appearance and it also showed the hard work the different members had put into preparation. To pick out the individual best Scout was the hardest task yet, for no less than seven Scouts stood out well bunched for the honor. These were ordered forward and given several close examinations and finally the inspectors decided that of Senior Patrol Leader King Rugg, Scouts Edmund L. Frost, John Marsh, Jack Rugg, Robbins Kimball, Lyman Moore and Gilbert Langley. Scout Moore best answered the requirements and he was presented the pin. After inspection a quiz was held on the different badges of the organization. It was announced that Wolf Patrol is now leading Beaver Patrol for the patrol contest.

At the meeting of Troop 3, Wednesday evening, Jan. 17, Individual and Patrol contests were started with the Commissioned Officers as judges. Assistant Patrol Leader Homer Collins made a fine start in the individual contest and is leading. The standing of the Patrol contest is Flying Eagle 13, Wolf 11.

Saturday several Scouts from Troop 3 and 5 went on an overnight hike to Bedford in charge of Assistant Scoutmaster Hodgdon. Patrol Leaders Finley and Collins of Troop 3 and Scouts Anderson, Danston and Meekins of Troop 5 made up the party. Scoutmaster Holbrook intended to go but illness prevented. The party left the electric at Lexington Park. Equipment was packed on sleds but the going was too heavy for sleds and before long they were left at a farmhouse, the stuff packed on backs and the long trail hit across country. This was hard for the boys but not one squealed. Scouts always take their medicine—and in time camp was reached. A good hot supper and then all turned in and slept as only boys tired from outdoors work can sleep. An early breakfast was eaten next morning and then everyone had a chance at snowshoeing with the resultant fine tumbles. After dinner the start was made for home and as it had thawed the going was even harder than before. But at last the avenue was reached and while waiting for the car, the Scouts did a good turn, pulling a Ford car out of the drifts. The hike was voted a great success.

The Patrol Leaders' school was held at the Old Town Hall, Tuesday, Jan. 16th. Eagle Scout LaCasse in the chair. Patrols were formed and this program was followed: Flag Ceremony, Drill, Tenderfoot Knots, and Indoor Games. The meeting closed with a short talk by Executive Bacon on "A Patrol Leader's Job." Twenty-six Scouts were present.

Troop 6 held its regular meeting at the First Baptist Church, Thursday, Jan. 18, and after the usual business was transacted and basketball practice, the members rehearsed the part they are to take in the anniversary celebration, February 8. Eagle Patrol is still looking for a contest with some other patrol, but as yet no challenge has been received.

Three members of Troop 8, Senior Patrol Leader King Rugg, Scouts Kimball and Baston, went to Marlboro, Saturday, on a hike during which the two latter Scouts passed their 14 mile hike test. The three took the train at Belmont for Wayland, where they hiked to Scoutmaster Richardson's camp, on the outskirts of Marlboro, a distance of nine miles, over the State road, which they reported was but little broken out. Dinner was cooked in camp and in the middle of the afternoon the trail was hit for Wayland, which was reached at 5.30 o'clock. The train due at that time was one and one-half hours late, so the boys had to wait. In spite of the hard going they had a fine time and suffered no ill consequences.

A number of Scouts from Troop 4 also took a hike on Saturday, with Scoutmaster Marple. In the course of the day, Scouts Ross, Anderson, Pearce and Hunt passed their tracking tests for second class. Several members of the troop, last week, did a good turn by operating the stereopticon lantern, at the Baptist Church, belonging to the church, for an entertainment, a turn the Baptist people appreciated, greatly.

for Sunday also marked the anniversary of the birth of Mr. Rowell, and a dinner party was arranged with Mr. and Mrs. Doe, Mr. and Mrs. Levi M. Dolloff and family of this town, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Worthley and Mrs. Persis Worthley, all of Somerville, as the guests of the Rowells.

Mrs. Persis Worthley, who is 92 years of age, was one of the liveliest of the party and contributed not a little to the enjoyment of all present. After dinner Mrs. Brooks entertained with a number of vocal selections and there was a general good time. There were gifts for Mr. Rowell, also to Mr. and Mrs. Doe, and numerous floral remembrances.

Mr. and Mrs. Doe were married in Boston by Rev. Phineas Stowe, a Baptist clergyman. Mr. Doe is a native of Parsonsfield, Maine, where he was born, February 6, 1841. He came to Boston when he was twenty years of age and after he had been a clerk in the office of his uncle for some time, he engaged in business under his own name in 1869. He went to New York in 1872 and remained there until 1881, when he returned to Wilton, N. H., and carried on farming until 1889, when he moved to Arlington. He built a handsome residence on land just then being opened up and where he still resides. Mr. Doe was honored in New Hampshire by being elected to Legislature in that state for two years. In Arlington he served the town as a selectman for several years. On his return to live in Arlington he went into business in Boston, under the name of the Standard Furniture Company, retiring in 1895. Mrs. Doe before her marriage was Clara A. C'ford. The couple are enjoying exceptionally good health and their many friends wish them many more years of wedded happiness.

BOWLING NOTES
The bowling teams of the Community Club of Arlington did not roll on last Friday evening, as the first half of the season's program had been completed the week before. The second half will open this evening on the Arlington Alleys.

While no records were broken on Thursday evening, January 18th, in the bowling match of the Arlington Lodge of Elks' teams, rolled on the Arlington Alleys, there was plenty of excitement and some close scores. The only consolation the rollers have is that while some of the rollers do not consider themselves in class A, there are others in the same outfit who have nothing on them. Paul Fraser rolled the high three string total of the evening with 312 and also got the high single string total with 126. In the matches Team A took three points from Team B and Teams C and D split even. The scores:

Team A—Fraser 312, Hill 256, Curtis 273, Powers 263, Teevan 240, Total 1344.
Team B—Viano 294, Grannan 237, Buley 278, Kenney 281, Kehbe 256, Team total 1341.
Team C—Grossmith 214, Gay 257, Foley 216, Nixon 184, Thompson 263, Team total 1134.
Team D—Lenk 233, Curley 260, Hendrick 223, Bray 240, Dummy 184, Team total 1140.

So much interest is being shown by the wives and lady friends of the members of Arlington Lodge of Elks that starting next Wednesday evening, weekly tournaments, teams made up of men and women, will be held on the Arlington Alleys. Unless some of the men make a better showing than they do on the regular Thursday evening tournaments, the ladies will have but little trouble in beating them out.

The final match of the series between Geary and Weston and Adams and Hawke for the championship will be rolled on the Arlington Alleys, next Wednesday evening. Each team has won a series and the interest in the match is running high.

The bowling teams of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association are still holding forth in top place in the Newton and Amateur Boston Pin Leagues. In the Newton league the team has a good grip and the margin is close in the latter league but with the team now going steady and sure.

In the Community Church Bowling League series, rolled Monday evening, on the Arlington Alleys, Christenson of the Calvary Methodist Team A, set a new high total mark for the single string, hitting 123. He also had the high three string total with 312. A. Clare of the First Baptist team won second honors with a single string of 113 and three string total of 302. The matches resulted in the First Baptist Church team taking four from Team A of Calvary Methodist Church; Team B of Calvary Methodist Church took three from Team B of the Church of Our Savior (Episcopal); Trinity Baptist Church forfeited to the Davis team of the Heights Baptist Church and the A. F. G. Brotherhood of the Heights Baptist Church took three from the Heights Methodist Church. The scores:

NEW POLICE CHIEF FOR LEXINGTON

Edward Leavitt of Ipswich, is to be Lexington's new chief of police. His appointment was confirmed at the meeting of the board of Selectmen in the Lexington Town Hall, Tuesday evening. The new chief will enter upon his duties in Lexington, about February 10th, as soon as he has finished with court work and other details of his office as chief of police in Ipswich, from which position he has tendered his resignation, to take effect early next month.

Chief Leavitt has lived in Ipswich most of his life, and is well known and highly respected in that town. He was first made a reserve on the Ipswich police in 1913. In 1915 he was appointed a regular patrolman. He was given a leave of absence in 1917 to enlist in the United States Navy. For two years he was a member of the naval vice squad, which did effective work in Boston and other places.

At the close of the war he returned to Ipswich, and resumed his duties as patrolman, but did not remain in this capacity long, for after serving several weeks he was made chief. At that time he was the youngest chief of police in the state, being but 28 years old. During the four years that he has been chief, he has done very efficient work, and his splendid record as executive head of the Ipswich police has attracted widespread attention. No doubt, he will make an ideal chief for Lexington, and the Minute-Man wishes him the best of success here.

Chief Leavitt will replace Chief Patrick J. Maguire, who will continue to serve on the force. He was appointed chief at the time of the retirement of Chief Charles H. Franks, several years ago, Chief Maguire having been a patrolman on the Lexington force for years. Chief Leavitt will have a force under him in Lexington, about the same size as that in Ipswich, where the department is made up of the chief and eight patrolmen. The new chief was chosen from among about half a dozen applicants, and this speaks well of his worth. Chief Leavitt is married and with his family will remove from Ipswich to Lexington, as soon as he can secure a home here. He is well thought of in his home town of Ipswich, and has had much experience in the police game.

The Selectmen expect to appoint a sergeant for the local police, during the coming week, following the receipt of official notification from the Civil Service examinations, taken by four members of the local department. Unofficial word of the result of the examination was received last week, and is printed in this paper, in another column.

SUNDAY DINNER AT FIRST PARISH CHURCH A GREAT SUCCESS

If any doubts had been entertained as to the feasibility of having a dinner following a Sunday morning preaching service, it must have been dispelled in Lexington at least, for one of the most satisfactory gatherings of members of the parish and church assembled in the First Unitarian Church, on last Sunday, to participate in the dinner, arranged for by a committee composed of Mrs. Kelsey G. Reed, Mrs. Horace Webster and Miss Mary Eastman.

The idea of holding the dinner on Sunday instead of on a regular week night, as has been the custom, was suggested by Mr. Waldo Glidden and that illness made it impossible for him to be present, was deeply regretted.

After the regular preaching service the company remaining which numbered about two hundred, listened to a splendid musical program, given by the members of the church quartet, directed by the organist, Mr. A. C. Foster. It consisted of quartet and solo numbers and selections by Mr. Foster, all of which gave an hour of keen pleasure, those present greatly appreciating the interest the organist and singers had taken in the dinner, to be willing to give their time to prepare a program, which was finely rendered.

Instead of the regulation long tables, seventeen small ones were placed in the supper room of the church. At each was a host and hostess, and at some the turkey, for it was a turkey dinner, was carved by the host, this adding to the family spirit and intent of the dinner. Each table was decorated with the holy berries, babary and small ones placed in dainty receptacles that gave brightness to each and carried out the suggestion of the winter season. These were arranged by Miss Seaver. There was a dainty place card for each host and hostess so that there was no confusion as to the seating, for neighbors and friends gathered about the tables making congenial groups.

There was a table reserved for the young people and that they were happily placed was apparent by the spirit of fellowship and good cheer that pervaded the corner where they were seated.

The dinner was served at one o'clock, and before the blessing was asked by the Rev. Lawrence Haywood, he spoke briefly, but in a most impressive manner, as to the helpful influence a gathering like the present could have among the people thus assembled. He spoke of the beauty of fellowship among a parish and what forms it could take in furthering the Christian spirit. He spoke of the growing interest of the young people in religious life. That the idea of this dinner was, in a way, returning to the old custom, when the meeting house was the social center about which all gathered on Sunday, making it a big religious family gathering, inspiring and helpful to all who participated.

After the dinner, groups gathered about the open fire place in the ladies' parlor, the young people also lingering some time after the dinner, which was the best proof that the experiment had been a great success, in fact so much so that other denominations in the town have since been interested to learn about it and it is not unlikely that other similar gatherings may be held by other churches, as well as the First Parish.

The hosts and hostesses at the tables were as follows:—Mr. and Mrs. George H. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. George Streeter, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Redman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ballard, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Redman, Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Greeley, Miss Priscilla Webster, Randolph Piper, Miss Annie Forsyth, Mr. and Mrs. John Ballard, Miss Louise Butters, Mrs. J. S. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sturtevant, Mr. and Mrs. Philip E. Perry, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Brown.
